Insure.com Guides High-Risk Consumers on Life Insurance Options

By Insure.com Posted on October 3, 2019

A new series of articles helps those with high blood pressure, diabetes, cancer and other high-risk conditions on obtaining life insurance coverage.

Foster City, CA – October 3, 2019 – Insure.com, a one-stop destination for unbiased, expert advice on life, health and home insurance, just published guidance on how those with high-risk conditions can acquire life insurance.

Insurance analysts explain that serious pre-existing conditions don’t automatically disqualify people from getting life insurance but that they can mean higher rates. Diagnoses, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, cancer and other illnesses, can make it challenging to find affordable life insurance, but a recent suite of articles explains the life insurance ratings process and shows how premiums can differ for various circumstances.

"It’s important to explore all options if you fall into a high-risk life insurance rating category," advises Les Masterson, managing editor for Insure.com. "We provide consumers with straight-forward information on term and permanent life insurance while also counseling them on riders that may be important, such as those for critical illness, long-term care, accelerated death benefit and final expenses."
Insure.com recognizes that those with certain illnesses face challenges when applying for various types of insurance. These articles may be invaluable resources to affected individuals:
